Saturday was a most disagreeable day, but notwithstanding this there was a large crowd in town, and all merchants did a most gratifying business. Had the day been pleasant, trade would undoubtedly have been the largest in ten years. As it was, however, everybody was satisfied. Bridal presents were very numerous. Some very valuable and others of great use, they covered a table four feet square.

At 10 o'clock supper was announced and on entering the room one was confronted with the most tastily arranged tables, both as to quantity to attend, (and I have been at many.) To say the least it presented a most beautiful picture. At one end of the the table stood a large cake with a shaft fourteen inches high, with a pea fowl perched upon its summit, as if he was viewing the surrounding aspect, in hopes of discovering the tiny little canary bird sitting upon a similar shaft at the other extremity of the table. The arrangements of these two birds may have been the romantic idea of some of the attendants of Mrs. Martin in the preparation of tue bounties, as an emblematic expression of the relationship of the groom to the bride in size. Supper being over the party repaired to the drawing room, and after a few preliminary skirmishes to get the Rev. Mr. Garriss to understand that it was bordering on to a feast at which he could not preside, the young people entered into the amusements which generally accompanies the tripping of the fantastic toe in the round dances until a late hour.

BUSINESS BUSINESS

Owing to the unusual stringency for the last few seasons, the people generally have practiced economy in their purchases in all branches of trade. The general merchandise business has felt the pressure with the rest. Considering the situation, we feel gratified that our business has held its own beyond our expectations. Now that the times are better, we feel that to do more this fall in that line. Come and see. We intend to clear them out. Handkerchiefs, a big line, and the prettiest we have ever handled. Hosiery, a well selected lot, and the prices we leave to the decision of the purchaser. White

BOOTS AND SHOES.

WE HAVE SOMETHING TO SAY.

Do you know that there is as much difference in shoes as there is in pie-crusts. You go to a cheap hotel and pay 25 cents for a poor dinner, while at another you pay $1.00 for a good one. As a rule you say in the end the higher price is the best, because it was better quality and no shoddy. So with shoes; you can't make good shoes out of poor material. Haven't von often been tempted to invest in cheap shoes that looked as well as higher price goods? If, however, you want to put your money where it will do the most good, take our advice and buy nothing but reliable, well made shoes, such as found at the Corner Store, and our word for it vou will thank us for the suggestion. To those who have been trading with us, we have nothing to say; we expect to see .
